WE NOMINATE

Gerard Barnes Lambert, one of the most incredible and least-known of all living Princetonians, whose newly-published autobiography, All Out of Step, is as much of a Chronicle of Princeton as it is "A Personal Chronicle" of an energetic and astoundingly able 70-year old idea-man. At a time of life when an individual might be tempted to relax, and to look back rather than ahead, Lambert continues to probe for new ideas and now as a founder of the Princeton-headquartered Institute for International Social Research is attempting to add a new dimension to the public-opinion testing techniques he has proved successful in business, political campaigns and even military intelligence.

It is Lambert's hope (and it is on a tone of hope that his engrossing life-story closes) that he and his associates may be able to apply to the field of international relations the procedures he found invaluable in measuring the "relative effectiveness of appeals to the consumer." By shrewdly estimating, and then carefully testing, sales response to various appeals, he built his family's company (Listerine) into a multi-million dollar corporation, conjured up the Blue Blade and one-piece razor for the once-struggling Gillette Safety Razor Company, worked directly with President Roosevelt on public opinion analysis in World War II and performed yeoman's duty for a succession of Republican presidential candidates, including Thomas Dewey, Wendell Willkie and finally in 1952 President Eisenhowever.

While the autobiography, the third volume Lambert has published commercially in the past two decades, cannot be termed a literary masterpiece, it is a vibrant document punctuated with dozens of startling statements such as "I have loaned more than one million dollars to friends and have received back practically nothing", "I might as well say frankly that I was never impressed by Mr. Willkie", and "Then, barring no holds, I tore him" (meaning H.L. Mencken) "to shreds". The work is also a moving and wonderfully human book in which he skims through the early years in his native St. Louis, touches upon family associations in Virginia, relives his undergraduate years as a member of the Princeton Class of 1908 and churns memories with his yachting experiences in the 1930's.

Deeply interested in the Princeton Community ever since he turned his back on Yale and what he remembers as the "hot, dirty and uninteresting commercial city" of New Haven, Lambert has helped shape Princeton. His former home, Albemarle, the most beautiful of the North's "Virginia mansions" when completed in 1917, now houses the Columbus Boychoir School. Across from the Hospital, where Lambert House stands as a living memorial to his son, Gerard B. Lambert Jr., are located the Borough's first low-cost housing units, which he built in the late 1930's and demonstrated—to the consternation of the New Deal—that private capital could be used for low-rent dwellings. Few in the community know that each year Princeton service organizations receive some $21,000 from Lambert-established annuities.

For generating the kind of personal dynamism that was—and is—a driving force in American life; for understanding both those who "all are out of step" and those who walk with the crowd; for being able to say in 1956 "I find myself more engaged in our affairs as each day passes,"; he is Town Topics' nominee for

AROUND TOWN

Not an Untypical Week. It was a typical kind of week in Princeton; a week in which curious things took place, but they seemed less curious because they took place in Princeton. It was a week when all the celebration of Princeton's football victory over Harvard wasn't joyous, when one subdivision in the community's sea of subdivisions began to look a mite seasick, and when Borough officials started preparing public opinion for reassessment news.

Actually, some of the post-Harvard game headaches were caused by pre-game festivities. Two visiting Cantabs from Cambridge, Kennard Woodsworth and William C. Hudson, were caught early Saturday morning while trying to escape with the large United Fund billboard on Palmer Square. They spent an uncomfortable night in city jail before Mr. Woodsworth, proving there is honor among thieves at all levels, accepted a disorderly conduct plea and received the heaviest fine, $15. His partner paid only $5 court costs.

Only a few hours earlier, Navyman Alan P. Tredennick, 343 Snowden Lane, and James M. Sweeney, Lawrenceville Road, were found brawling in front of the Chestnut Street firehouse, while, not too many hours later, Eugene J. McNulty, 116 Mercer Street, was kept from watching the first half of the contest because he was being booked for swearing at an officer conducting football traffic. Mr. Tredennick, due elsewhere for duty, paid $30 for offensive language and interferring with a policeman, but Mr. Sweeney must appear in Municipal Court next Tuesday. Mr. McNulty, who claimed "a great provocation" for his choice of words, also will be back in court —with an eyewitness who saw why he said them.

Law enforcement officers weren't finished with the frivolity by game time, to be sure. There were the usual number of inebriated celebrants in need of direction home. And at least five of these, having reported their autos stolen, needed direction to their autos. There were wires ripped from the Harvard bus in true juvenile fashion and there were the customary large number of cameras, coats and bikes taken from different campus clubs during the ensuing night. Also lifted was a $500 Rigid pipe-cutter, removed from the Seminary library construction job.

Low Level for Nu-Level. Municipal officials in both Borough and Township noted this week that a $15,000 personal performance bond, filed more than 90 days ago by land developer Howard Williamson, had run its course and become defunct because no improvements (sewers, etc.) have been made at Nu-Level Homes on North Harrison Street. Indicating that said improvements will be made, though behind schedule, Mr. Williamson talked in terms of the first of next year and toyed with the idea of posting a casualty bond to protect his investment.

Observers pointed out that Mr. Williamson, who sold the land in question to Nu-Level, can't be blamed for the non-performance to date He felt originally that more of the homes would be sold by now, but sales in the subdivision that invades both municipalities by crossing Franklin Avenue have lagged — and so, quite naturally, have the promised improvements. Several houses have almost been completed in the Township and have been sold; none of the houses in the Borough has been undertaken. Nu-Level, not to mention Mr. Williamson,

'First Lady' for Morven

Pieces to the state's No. 1 jigsaw puzzle fell neatly into place this past week, giving New Jersey Democrats just the tonic they needed to sooth the deep pains of their worst political infliction in history.

To begin with, Governor Robert B. Meyner confirmed the long-expected announcement that he will marry 28-year-old Helen Day Stevenson, son (Princeton '22), cousin of Adlai E. Stevenson (also '22) and granddaughter of the late J. Ross Stevenson, onetime president of Princeton Theolodaughter of William E. Stevengical Seminary.

As the 48-year-old governor reported his blissful intentions, including the fact that he and his bride will move into their renovated Princeton mansion, Morven, after January nuptials, equally blissful newsmen started reporting other intentions. They made no bones about the point that Miss Stevenson, with "a bent for politics" (to quote Mr. Meyner), will greatly enhance the Democratic governor's chances for re-election late next year — in the face of tremendous GOP gains this fall.

Meanwhile, others continued to stimulate the rumor that the "first lady's" father, now president of Oberlin College, will become a Princeton neighbor by June. It's still their firm belief that the able educator will succeed Dr. Harold W. Dodds as president of the university.

has high hopes that prospective homeowners will get in the buying mood soon.

For the benefit of Borough taxpayers who own homes or buildings in Princeton, city fathers announced this week that they expect to receive total appraisal figures, at full current value (based on the reassessment program now in progress), within the next 10 days. Once received, these figures will be sent by mail to each taxpayer of record who, if he sees the possibility of an error or objects, will be afforded reasonable time to file his objections in writing. Later, he will be advised of a time and place to discuss his individual objections.

Anxious not to confuse citizens on this vital subject, officials emphasized that the appraisal figures will be used only as a guide by the assessor and not as assessed value figures for 1957 until so established by him. The new tax rate will be based solely on the amount of money required for the Borough's 1957 budget and, with assessed value figures hinging on 100% of the property's worth, it is anticipated that the tax rate will be proportionately reduced. Business will pay more of the load, many individuals will pay less.

PERSONALITIES

Bill Gallant, son of Patrolman and Mrs. Arthur F. Gallant, 9 Erdman Avenue, and Vic Fasanella, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor E. Fasanella, 42 Humbert Street, who were rewarded for their "hearty" play and vast improvement during the 1956 football season by being chosen by their teammates to lead the 1957 Little Tigers at Princeton High School. (For story, photo, turn to Sports in Princeton).

Henry Young, Riverdale Farm, Rocky Hill, who became a man very much in the limelight this week as he sought to find the young Princeton man who has been very much in the limelight all year. Representing the Princeton Jaycees' awards committee, Mr. Young opened annual nominations for "Princeton's outstanding young man of the year," asking individuals and organizations to suggest candidates between the ages of 21 to 35 who have demonstrated accomplishments, leadership and service to the community during 1956.

Lois Smith, 15 University Place, talented young actress who will give off-Broadway theatre a further boost next week when she appears in a key role in a Tennessee Williams' play. (See picture and story, page 8.)

ROUND-UP

The county-wide wave "pushing" municipal ordinances in favor of broad anti-salacious literature powers, having swept across Trenton, Ewing and Hamilton, rolled on through Princeton Township (see reference, page 4) but ran into a solid bulwark in the Borough (see story, page 3) . . . Mailmen will get another day off on November 22 (Thanksgiving), though holiday collections will be made and special delivery mail will be delivered, per usual, and the post office lobby will remain open for box holders.

Frank T. Gorman, mathematics teacher at Princeton Country Day School, has come up with some interesting figures overlooked by most persons: Forgetting actual totals and discounting absentee ballots, Ike capture 60% of the vote in the Borough and Township combined, exactly the same percentage that he won here in 1952. . . . By the way, the disbanded Princeton Volunteers for Stevenson-Kefauver, who enlisted 1,000 active members in less than two months and sent $3,500 to national headquarters after paying their own bills, did a splendid job, in defeat, and may well have established a broader base and earned more per capita donations than any comparable Adlai-Estes group in the country.

Still on the same theme, it is interesting to note that New York Times pundit Arthur Krock (Princeton '08) has accepted an invite to address a dinner meeting of the Nassau Club on November 27, selecting as his topic "interpretative Washington reporting, with due notice of the election results". . . Speaking of speakers, sportscaster "Red" Barber will pull quite a hidden drawl trick when he considers "The Layman in the Church" at a gathering of the Presbyterian Westminster Foundation Sunday evening at the First Presbyterian Church.

Amateur astronomers will be able to take some rare heavenly glimpses Saturday night when the year's first eclipse of the moon is scheduled to unfold about 11 p.m. and reach its copper-red peak several hours later . . . With excitement growing over this weekend's Princeton-Yale football contest, readers may well want to know how a few of their fellow citizens pick the outcome, revealed in question of the Week on page 13. . . . Followers of Princeton High football should be interested to learn that the Little Tigers have won 90 games and lost 69 in 23 campaigns since dropping the six-man version of the sport.

At the conclusion of a Public Utilities Commission hearing in Newark, Tuesday, "Nellie Bly" got an indefinite stay of execution. The popular slow-poke, a mid-day local plying between Trenton and New York and thence back to Atlantic City, was doomed by Pennsylvania Railroad for time-table extinction, but the Commission granted her further life pending additional study of her need for passenger transportation. Indications were that her days were still numbered, if not specifically at the moment.

BOROUGH COUNCIL

"Censorship" Tabled. The omnibus obscene literature ordinance, now "on the books" in five other Mercer County municipalities and highly recommended by the County Prosecutor's Office as a means of cutting time and costs while gaining uniformity of enforcement, was unanimously tabled at Tuesday evening's session of Mayor and Council following a serene and thoughtful public hearing.

The proposed four-paragraph ordinance, with an all-inclusive opening paragraph that raised visions of "literary lynching" and possible penalties for offending libraries, business firms and individuals, was squarely opposed by a baker's dozen who lauded the intentions of the measure's sponsors but red-flagged its potential dangers and harassments, particularly in a community grounded in education and research.

Speaking in behalf of the ordinance, which has been endorsed by the Mercer County Committee on Clean Literature headed by University Registrar Howard W. Stepp, Frederick English, Assistant Mercer County Prosecutor, emphasized that "public morals need protection" and found a striking similarity between Pure Food and Drug Acts and a law designed to check the "poisoning of morals."

The varying shades of uneasiness created by the measure, which was said to "dispense with judicial process" and actually does overlap a State law prohibiting the "publishing, exhibition, sale, distribution or possession of obscene literature," was summarized by Norvell B. Samuels, Associate Director and Controller of the University Press, who said "it would be a great mistake to pass the ordinance as it has been proposed."

Among others speaking out against the ordinance, which was unanimously passed on first reading October 9th without discussion, were Herbert S. Bailey, Director of the University Press; J. Seymour Montgomery, 55 Westcott Road; Harry C. Hart, Lilac Lane; Robert F. Kolkebeck, Educational Testing Service; and Professors Jerome Blum and Richard A. Lester, of the University Faculty.

THREE NEW MOUTHS TO FEED: That's the problem (as well as joy) that faces Mr. and Mrs. Willie Hayes of Princeton following the birth of Dwight, Dale and William, first triplets born at Princeton Hospital since 1948. The Hayes family, which also includes a 17-month-old girl, is just recovering financially from a terrific gas stove explosion that left them homeless several years ago, and now must figure out how to nourish three extra mouths. Father Hayes is at a loss for ideas, since he already holds two full-time jobs, and his wife, Beulah (as demonstrated by nurse Dorothy Cullen), obviously is going to have her hands full at home. And the growing boys, three-pounders at birth on Election Day (thus the name Dwight for the first-born), are about ready to invade the Hayes home on Route 27.

Traffic and Schools. The ever-growing traffic and parking problems, which in October produced nearly 1,400 "motor vehicle violations," were reflected in two communications. The Elementary Schools' P.T.A. urgently requested precautionary steps at two dangerous intersections, Charlton-William and North-Harrison-Hamilton, while residents of Alexander Street (Nos. 1-44) requested a two-hour parking limitation to alleviate mounting congestion. In this and other connections, Mayor and Council will meet in special session Wednesday noon to consider amendments to the "Traffic Ordinance."

Matters of Moment. "Pressure of business" has brought the resignation of Colonel Francis J. Darke Jr., 61 Laurel Road, from the direction of the combined Borough-Township Defense Council. Acceptance was temporarily tabled pending the two municipalities' search for a qualified successor.

● The Penguin Social Club, 184 John Street, has been charged with two alleged violations by the A.B.C. on Saturday, October 13th. Reported irregularities involve "illegal hours" and "sale to non-members."

● Mrs. Harold K. Hochschild, 150 Stockton Street, and James S. Clark, Hartley Avenue, have been re-appointed to three-year terms as the Boroughs representatives on the Marquand Park Advisory Council. Other appointments will be made in the near future by the Board of Education, the Playgrounds' Committee and the Board of Education.

● A gesture towards Borough-Township consolidation was offered in Councilman Raymond F Male's suggestion that the two combine forces in hiring an Assistant Public Health Officer. The Borough's post remains open at $3,500 per annum.

TOWNSHIP COMMITTEE

Budget Transfers Okayed. After hearing the why and wherefores of anticipated budget shortages in certain governmental departments, the Township Committee, at its first post-election session Monday evening, agreed unanimously to transfer funds from other departments with less pressing needs. The total amount involved is $3,075, the biggest part being needed by building and grounds ($1,400) and health ($787) and being taken from road accounts ($2,200.)

Clerk Joseph R. Nini said shortages are expected in grounds and buildings (mostly due to the high cost of operating enlarged Township Hall), health (because the part-time nurse went full-time in July), public assistance, police pension funds and administrative and executive. He noted that road accounts could best carry the bulk of the transfer, since bad weather and other factors have put the Township road maintenance schedule behind projected cost requirements.

On the subject of road improvements, the Committee quickly passed a resolution to make use of $10,000 granted to the Township through state aid (via gasoline taxes) for road construction or re-construction. Mayor Ralph S. Mason explained that the Committee had hoped, when drawing up its current budget, to eventually receive the outlay, so had included $1,200 in the budget as the Township's share in the program. Now that the grant has been okayed, it probably will be earmarked for additional work on Herrontown Road.

Thomas F. Sullivan Jr., concerned about holes in front of his home at 87 Leavitt Lane, contended that Public Service left the holes following a recent job there and asked the Township to come to the rescue. The Committeemen advised him that Leavitt Lane has not been accepted into the Township road system to date, but offered to contact Public Service in an effort to iron out Mr. Sullivan's bumps.

Two Ordinances Passed. In other pertinent moves, the Committee accomplished the following:

● Adopted an ordinance banning obscene literature in the Township after receiving no comments from the floor at its public hearing.

● Adopted an ordinance amendment requiring construction of sidewalks in new subdivisions by contractors, again no public complaints.

● Recognized regretfully the resignation of Col. F. J. Darke Jr., 61 Laurel Road, as director of civil defense and disaster control, but postponed acceptance of the resignation until a successor can be named at a joint meeting of Township and Borough leaders.

● Accepted a proposal by developer Walter B. Howe that he put up 50% of costs for the paving of Guyot Avenue (bordered by his and the Township's lots) between Carnahan Place and Harris Road.

● Accepted regretfully the resignation of Myron E. LaVake Jr., now of Florida, as a member of the Board of Improvement Assessors.

● Agreed to write another letter to the State Highway Department requesting a new survey—aimed at lower speeds — along Route 206.

● Heard the first reading of an ordinance to include Deerpath and part of Clover Lane in the Township road system.

SWIMMING POOL

Committee Enlists Support. Using a recent county report as a springboard, the citizens' committee promoting a swimming pool for the Princeton Community emerged from temporary hiding this week with an elaborate presentation of its proposed plans. In the words of John Lasley, the group's acting chairman: "We didn't want to go a step further until we had all available facts in hand and on paper."

The committee, "composed of permanent Princeton residents who agree that Princeton requires a swimming pool," pointed out in its well-documented study that "this plan was devised to demonstrate public support for a pool and to make a concrete proposal for discussion." With the plan ready to back up ensuing

McCARTER THEATRE

British Comedienne Next. As their final offering of the fall season, which is now badly in need of something really worthwhile to put patrons in the holiday mood, the managing directors of McCarter Theatre will attempt to trump all previous cards by delivering a single ace from their sleeves. The point-maker will be Joyce Grenfell, who has agreed to present two performances of her limited second tour of the United States here in Princeton.

Appropriately, since the sessions in hilarity conducted by Britain's favorite comedienne are called "An Evening with Joyce Grenfell," both Princeton performances will be evening shows, at 8:30 p.m. this Friday and Saturday. (Late-buyers are herewith warned that a sell-out is in progress at the McCarter box office, thanks to Miss Grenfell's heralded reputation and despite last weekend's discouraging developments in the same theatre.)

With pardonable pride, Isadora Bennett and Richard Pleasant, McCarter's directors, have noted that only moneyman Ed Sullivan has succeeded in lining up Miss Grenfell for three performances—on his high-ranking television program, "Toast of the Town." Two of these TV appearances have occurred already, with good critical results, thus confirming the success of her twice-extended Broadway run of last year, when Walter Winchell enthused: "the best England has sent us since Noel Coward, Beatrice Lillie and Gertrude Lawrence."

As attested by Broadway critics, Miss Grenfell's material is pungent and funny, evidence of her role as one of England's leading humorists—a regular contributor to Punch and a writer of humorous verse and even songs. At the piano, which plays an important part in her evenings, the comedienne will be supported by her veteran collaborator, George Bauer.

Who Loves "Everybody"? The anticipated sell-outs this week will be welcome change for McCarter, where comparatively small audiences attended three performances of "Everybody Loves Me" last weekend before Saturday night's full house. Small or large, the audiences soon wished they were anywhere else with anybody instead of there with "Everybody."

A playwriting "first" for old friends Mannie Manheim and Arthur Marx, "Everybody" was billed as "a new comedy" about a television gagster. But, fearing that theatergoers might get the wrong idea, Messrs. Manheim and Marx stressed at a pre-premiere press conference that "Everybody" actually was a drama dealing with human emotions, using incidental jokes to emphasize the play's emotional crises.

Unfortunately, neither the advance publicity or the authors was right. "Everybody" didn't hit any emotional mark hard enough to register as a dramatic production of much value. The incidental jokes were just bad enough to detract from the plot rather than enhance it. And "Everybody" certainly didn't qualify as a "new" comedy.

Jack Carson, well-cast as the wise-cracking video headliner who learns the awful truth that his comic son is doing better with Trendex than he is, seemed ill at-ease on the McCarter stage, as if more concerned about helping his fellow performers than worrying about his own contribution. The lead role almost seemed like too much Carson—because Carson is a very funny person and, as indicated, he is asked to carry on too long without very funny material. Paradoxically, it would be a good role for Carson if it was a good role at all.

The playwrights and Robert B. Sinclair, the capable director, have a lot of faith in "Everybody" and, being hardy souls who respond to criticism with harder work, it is conceivable that they may be able to revive the show in Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Boston before its scheduled mid-December opening at the Belasco in New York. They have a young, spirited cast that should be happy to gamble with them.

And don't forget Producer Max Gordon. He has experienced the same sort of tryout openings in the past, encouraged many changes and reached Broadway with big hits. He has even dared to nurse his patients back to good health after watching the New York critics try to kill them off.

could keep conscientious theatergoers hopping for the next month. And, judging from the wide scope of the various offerings, there will be something for everyone.

First on the agenda is a "Two-Hour Journey" of two one-act plays, to be presented at 8 p.m. November 15 and 16 in the Campus Center Auditorium of Princeton Theological Seminary by the Merlin Theater, a dramatic association of the Seminary dedicated to productions of religious significance. The program will consist of William Saroyan's "Hello Out There," a modern drama, followed by a reading of Stephen Vincent Benet's "A Child Is Born," in verse.

"Hello Out There" is being directed and staged by Lihert Vin Paul Diaforli. Members of the cast are David Crossley, Marilyn Klassen, William Starr, Thomas Kepler, Patricia Budd and Willis Burget.

Carrie C. Watson is the director for "A Child Is Born," while the cast, in order of appearance, includes William Boak, James Shepherd, Shirley Bird, Nancy Thomas, Ann McKinachan, Charles A. Hammond and Preston Bogia. Original music for this play is the work of Robert Jacks, conducted by Richard Avery. Guitar accompaniment will be rendered by Robert MacFarlane.

The public is cordially invited to attend the Merlin Theater's performances. Only a "free will" offering will be taken.

Players Pick Play. The Princeton Community Players have selected Paul Osborn's "Morning's at Seven," recently done on TV by the Gish sisters, for their first production of the 1956-57 season. It will be presented in Murray Theatre the week of November 26 under the direction of Mario Siletti, a member of the faculty of the Stella Adler School of the Theater.

Included in the Players' cast, which started rehearsals last week, are Mrs. Susan Frick, Miss Frances Keene, E. N. Muller, Mrs. Lucy Aalholm, Henry Siegle, William Snow, John Strong and Mrs. Olivia Wood. The setting, a dual purpose exterior, is being designed and built by Byron Keene and James Hopkins.

On the evenings of November 30 and December 1, the Dramatic Club of Miss Fine's School will offer three one-act plays, directed by Mrs. Frank Watson, the lead in last year's Seminary production of Shaw's "St. Joan." The club's playbill will include "The Dark Lady of the Sonnets" by Shaw, "The Twelve Pound Look" by Sir James Barrie and "Hands Across the Sea" by Noel Coward.

Miss Fine's students participating in the three offerings are Betsy Baker, Marianne Peskine, Ann Kinczel, Camilla Turnbull, Anne Prather, Kinsa Turnbull, Mary Strunsky and Bettina Bur-

COBWEBS IN THE CLUBHOUSE: Peter G. Cook, president of the Princeton Community Players, is spearheading the group's clean-up of its new clubhouse at Rosedale Mills, occupied last weekend. The 40-foot by 50-foot quarters are expected to be ready for full-scale use by the Players in two months, so the president lost little time in getting to the most obvious job, that of cobweb-removing. While their Alexander Street home is being readied, the Players will present "Morning's at Seven" late this month in Murray Theatre on campus.

It's New to Us

Hand-Crafted for Christmas. It's Christmas upsteirs, at the new Christmas Shop, 14 Witherspoon Street. Walk into the little hall, with its new coat of white paint and the modern painting flanked by a pair of golden sunbursts—the hall is a preview of what lies upstairs. The Shop itself is full of handsome Christmas gifts, all of them designed and made by the trio of energetic, talented young women who had the idea of starting the shop.

What can you buy? Superbly made skirts, fashioned of preshrunk dressmaker burlap, lined throughout and printed by silk-screen. Some skirts have four-inch Greek coins in random circles over the surface. Many of them have delicate snowflakes, and several have fat hearts and flowers in the Pennsylvania Dutch manner.

This burlap has all ben painstakingly dyed by the gals who make the skirts, with the result that you'll find off-beat shades of russet, or a shadowy violet. If you have a design or a color in mind for a special gift skirt, ask the shop and they'll make one for you.

Burlap appears again in a series of little cocktail aprons, each one about the size of an orange slice. Velvet ribbon and thick upholsterer's fringe has been used imaginatively on several of these aprons, and both aprons and skirts use an occasional sequin or brilliant to give highlights.

Place mats in burlap have stenciled butterflies around the edge. Stoles in burlap are lined with silk and made for evening or informal wear. Look what happens to a natural burlap stole when its lined with silk and petterned in a stripe by pulling out some of the threads. A line or two of gold thread makes it even more elegant. Black velvet ribbon decorates another natural burlap stole.

For Christmas egg-nog celebrations, buy a box of nutmeg covered with white felt and spangled with gold. Hang a hollow gold egg (real) from your tree, and next to it hang a two-inch cube of wood, covered with felt and decorated with gold. Buy a pair of little drum earrings, the drum covered with colored felt and laced with gold thread.

The Christmas Shop belongs to Jan Baldwin, Pat Elliott and Emma Elsner. Jan sews, Pat and Emma and Emma's husband do the art work.

The Eyes Have It

Next time your two-year-old puts his truck down on top of your glasses, you can have frames and lenses replaced by a new Princeton optician. He is Michael Mraz, who keeps his nose to a lens grindstone at 134 Nassau Street.

If you have a prescription to fill, he's your boy. If you want frames that are different from the ones you've worn for 10 years, he'll do that, too. You can choose your frames from a large collection he has on display.

Naturally, Mr. Mraz is a state licensed, oculist. He began his work as an apprentice in 1931, and after completing his journeyman training in 1943, he became assistant manager of the American Optical Company in Trenton. He was manager of the company when he left to join the Princeton community.

Mr. Mraz has a complete oculist's laboratory at 134 Nassau, and some time soon he expects to add binoculars, glasses with hearing aids and such 20-20 items as mother-daughter spectacles.

Don't be misled by the fact that these are three eager craftsmen. Their work is professional in every way—not a "loving hands at home" touch to a single piece. They've made the kind of thing you usuelly have to buy in New Hope or New York and they've done the work with imagination and deft fingers.

The shop is only open evenings, from 7 - 10 p.m.

Close to Home. The Millstone Inn in Kingston is a new addition to Princeton's list of places where you can satisfy thirst and hunger without going far from home.

The owners of the Inn have put in a new bar in the front part of the old house, and added a gleaming new kitchen in the rear. You'll like the dark panelling and the Provincial paper used in the bar, and you'll find the dining room across the hall a restful place to dine, with its old rose and gold walls and crystal chandeliers.

Millstone's dining room is open for luncheon from 11:30 every day except Monday, and for dinner from 5 p.m. The complete, reasonably priced menu includes excellent steak and spaghetti, veal Parmigiani and chicken Cacciatore, among other dishes. Mrs. Bambero, wife of the owner, has a very special dressing that she uses on her chef's salad bowl.

On Sundays, you can dine at the Inn from noon on, and you might make note of the Millstone as a place where it's possible to buy a Sunday drink.

The Millstone is on Kingston's main street, on your left as you drive in from Princeton. Plenty of parking in the Millstone's own yard.

Campbells Are Coming. One of advertising's oldest promotion devices — the two Campbell Soup Kids — will come to Bamberger's within the next week or two in a spate of new toys, clothes, home decorations—everything.

The two "kids," created by artist Grace Drayton over 50 years ago, are still pretty lively pitchmen. Youn'll find them at Bamberger's as boy and girl chef dolls in washable vinyl.

NEW SYMPHONY SEASON

First 1955-56 Concert Saturday. The first of three concerts planned for the current season by the Princeton Symphony Orchestra will be given Saturday night at 8:30 in the auditorium of Princeton High School. As in the other two, set for February 23 and April 30, Nicholas Harsanyi will conduct.

Saturday's program will include the Concerto for orchestra in D major by C. P. E. Bach; a flute concerto in G major by Johann Quantz; Kent Kennan's "Night Soliloquy;" and Mendelssohn's Symphony in C major. The soloist will be the orchestra's first flutist, John Solum, a student at Princeton University.

Residents of the Princeton area in the orchestra this year include concert-master Joseph Kovacs, a faculty member at Westminster Choir College; David Wells, Sargeant Street, first cellist; Charles Chandler, Westcott Road, violist; Hassler Whitney, Western Way; Miss Catherine Campbell, Miss Fine's School; Mrs. Louise Gardels, Marion Road West; Maxim Zinder, Nassau Street; Mrs. Helen T. Tas, Woodland Drive; Sylvan Friedman, Terhune Road; Louis Richards, Princeton High School; Mrs. Victoria Pehta, Grover Avenue; all violinists.

Also, John Winterbottom, Erdman Avenue; John Sessions, College Road West; and John Kalajian, Spring Street, all cellists; Mrs. Thomas Cook, Kingston, violist; Warren Eason, Harrison Street, French horn; and George Jones, Ewing Street, clarinet.

Tickets for Saturday's concerts are available at the University Store. Tickets for the series may be obtained through Mrs. Henry A. Barton, 25 Springdale Road (0442.)

Marian Anderson Billed. The Friendship Club announced this week that it will present Marian Anderson, famed contralto, in a benefit concert at McCarter Theatre on January 28.

Mrs. Bertha Hill Brandon of 20 Green Street is chairman of the club. Tickets will be available through the University Store.

bidge. Filling male roles, from the University and Seminary, are Peter Binkert, Tom Rose, Peter Specht, Richard Briggs, Tom Kerr, Charles Belvin, Richard Lyman and Bill Boak.

Marcy Carroll, a junior, will portray the harrowed heiress in Princeton High School's dramatic production of "The Curious Savage," a three-act comedy by John Patrick which will be presented December 7 and 8 in the PHS Auditorium. The director is Mrs. Wilma Harris of the school's English Department, who directed last season's "I Remember Mama."

Other members of the cast are Christy Snow, Peter Vajk, Nancy Dinsmore, John Sanborn, Diane Frampton, Helen Sweeney, Allan Salkin, Carol Anderson, Davis Yeung and Nick McKibbon.

NEW PART FOR LOIS

To Star at City Center. One of the shining stars in the brilliant sky of New York theater last season, 25-year old Lois Smith will return to the American theater next Wednesday in Tennessee Williams' "The Glass Menagerie" at New York City Center.

The play, which will run through December 2, will star Helen Hayes as the mother, a part first created by the late Laurette Taylor and later played in the movie versions by Gertrude Lawrence. James Daly and Lonny Chapman will play the parts of the son and the suitor, respectively. The play is directed by Alan Schneider.

Lovely Lois, who still resides in an apartment at 15 University Place (and commutes as often as possible to Norfolk where her husband, Wesley, is stationed in the Navy, will portray the role of the shy, crippled girl, Laura, originally played by Julie Hayden. This appearance will be her first in the New York theatre since "The Young and the Beautiful" closed last November after an eight-month run.

In "The Young and the Beautiful," written by Sally Benson on a series of F. Scott Fitzgerald short stories, Lois, herself virtually unknown, headed a cast of unknowns with great artistic success.

Since that time, Lois has been put under option by one of the large Hollywood movie companies, and, she says happily, subsequently freed herself of the option. She spent the summer in England, playing "The Young and the Beautiful" at an art theater in London for five weeks with an all-British company, and is now surveying various other parts to follow her appearance in "The Glass Menagerie."

YOUNG ACTRESS: Lois Smith of Princeton will open next week in Tennessee Williams' "The Glass Menagerie" at New York City Center. (Alan Richards Photo)

Meanwhile, her husband has another year to spend in the Navy, and will be going out to sea in December, shipped out of New York. After the year is over, he expects to return to Princeton University, where he was an instructor in classic languages before his military service.

moves, the committee will obtain as many signatures as possible to show public endorsement, then pursue its course of action before officials of the Borough and Township.

In offering its 12-page study, complete with maps, source index and costs in terms of additional taxes, the committee forewarded all proposals by stating that "a swimming pool is the outstanding gap in the recreational assets of the Princeton Community." This conclusion was reached after consideration of a long-range recreational plan for Mercer County, sent to the Freeholders a month ago by the National Recreational Association.

NRA, according to the pool committee, advised the Free-holders that "several pools are badly needed now." The association therefore recommended that "large swimming pools be built as soon as possible" around the county, including one in "Princeton Township."

Proposals Outlined. To gain support, Mr. Lasley and his associates stressed the following thoughts that soon will be taken to the governing bodies of both municipalities:

1. Location: The 7½-acre park area northeast of the Shopping Center.
2. Description: "L"-shaped, 8,000 square feet, capacity roughly 500 persons in the pool at any one time. Wading pool 30 feet by 30 feet by 15 inches deep.
3. Bath House: Minimum in size, with toilets, showers and small number of booths for changing clothes.
4. Safety: Highest safety, health and behaviour standards.
5. Lifeguards: From two to four on hand at all times.
6. Cost: About $110,000 (assuming Township land available no cost).
7. Financing: It is anticipated that the major share of the initial costs will be borne by the Townhsip and Borough. If the entire original cost should come from taxes, the total tax cost would be less than $2 per average homeowner per year for 15 years.
8. Maintenance Cost: About $8,000 per year. Studies show that, at anticipated usage, admission charges can cover these costs.
9. Admission: Proposed rates for adults, 40c-50c; children, 15c-25c.
10. Management: By an unpaid citizens' committee appointed by the Borough Council and Township Committee.

Regarding the proposed location, the report emphasized that only a portion (2½ acres) of the park acreage would be needed for the pool, that the reminder could be developed for other recreational facilities in the future. Also, it was noted that the Shopping Center's parking area

Obituaries

F. Gualdo Ford, of 30 Battle Road, died at his home November 9. Born in Morristown, he had made Princeton his home for a number of years and was a retired lawyer.

Mr. Ford belonged to the Rotary and Nassau Clubs and was also a member of the Old Guard. His wife, Mrs. Martha Walther Ford; a son, F. Gualdo, Jr.; and a daughter, Miss Jane H. Ford, all of Princeton, survive.

The service was held at Trinity Episcoal Church, with the rector, the Rev. Dr. John V. Butler, officiating. Burial was in Evergreen Cemetery, Morristown, under direction of the Mather Funeral Home.

Gotthard Gustafson, 69, of Washington Avenue, Griggstown, died November 9 at his home. A native of Sweden, he had retired from his position as an engineer with the Consolidated Edison Co. of New York.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Edla Anderson Gustafson; a son, a daughter, a sister and three grandchildren. The service at the Mather Funeral Home was followed by burial in Griggstown Cemetery.

Miss Mabel MacIntosh, whose home for many years was at 291 Nassau Street, died November 13 in Philadelphia following a long illness. She had been a resident of Princeton for nearly a quarter of a century, coming here from California.

Her only survivor is a brother, Oswald MacIntosh of Philadelphia, a member of the Class of 1902 at Princeton University. A sister, Marian, died here a number of years ago.

A private funeral will be held, with a memorial service to follow at the First Presbyterian Church. The date for the service has not yet been set.

Harrison M. Thomas, 62, former president of the Princeton Bank and Trust Company, died November 9 in Gibraltor while returning to the United States from a trip around the world. As a resident of Princeton, he had lived at 162 Mercer Street, but following his resignation as president of the bank had made his home in Worton, Md.

Mr. Thomas became ill while aboard a Norwegian ship, the Concordia Fjord, and was taken to a hospital in Gibraltar. Death was caused by a cerebral hemorrhage.

A graduate of Princeton University in 1916, Mr. Thomas had been in the brokerage and banking businesses in Pittsburgh before becoming president of the Princeton Bank and Trust Company in 1933. He served in that capacity for 20 years. He was president of the New Jersey Bankers Association in 1945.

Mr. Thomas is survived by his wife, Mrs. Martha Mullen Thomas; a son, three daughters, a brother and four grandchildren. His body is coming to this country by ship and a memorial service at a later date is planned.

With them, to start, there's a Campbell Kid Chow Time Set, including an aluminum camper's kettle, chuck-wagon style utensils and dishes, and cans of soup, pork and beans and spaghetti. A cookbook provides recipes for "Apache Stew," "Yippee Burgers," and "Pow-Wow Chow." To be eaten while watching Hopalong Cassidy.

Campbell Kids Lunch-time set is designed for brother-sister teamwork in preparing soups and sandwiches. In other kits, you'll find equipment for making pizzas, barbecue specials, baked dishes and even jelly, no less.

For mamma, the happiest news is the Campbell Kids Play-Vac for top efficiency in picking up crumbs. (It has a plastic tube so that you can watch the remains of the Yippee burger get sucked into the bag.) There is a battery powered electric mixer for whipped cream toppings and such.

Campbell also has pot-holders, appliance covers and Con-Tact cut-outs with the Kids, and pajamas, sport and polo shirts and woven nightwear with batching dressing gowns. Everything, in short, from soup to - soup!

"might be available for persons using automobile transportation," that bus transportation serves the area and that an abundant supply of well water exists which is independent of the Princeton Water Company.

Waxing enthusiastic over the report's possibilities and the long, hard work by the committee, Chairman Lasley proclaimed: "We still look forward to the dedication of a community pool by next Memorial Day." He said the next organized move will be a meeting for all those interested in the project at 8 p.m. on November 20 in the First Presbyterian Church.

BOROUGH COURT

Reckless Driver Fined. Explaining that the state attorney general has once again requested a severe crackdown on traffic violators, whenever such a crackdown is fully justified, Magistrate Paul R. Chesebro suspended the license for 30 days of Frank L. Schmertz, Montgomery Road, Skillman, in Municipal Court this week. He also fined the defendant $25.

Patrolman Russell Shangle, who apprehended the 27-year-old driver with Sgt. Charles Anderson, testified that Mr. Schmertz drove through the Mercer-Nassau "stop" sign, whisked his Austinn around the corner into Bayard Lane, drove north on Bayard at speeds up to 60 miles an hour and even traveled part of the way in the wrong lane before finally being caught on Route 206 near Red Hill Road.

Attorney Theodore T. Tams Jr., representing Mr. Schmert, admitted that his client was driving in a careless manner, but said the necessary "wanton" element for a reckless charge was lacking. Disagreeing, Magistrate Chesebro imposed sentence.

Only two other Princeton area cases were handled by the magistrate this week, Bruce Marker, 18, of 2 Hamilton Avenue, drawing a $15 penalty for cutting a corner improperly (prior to an accident) and Mrs. Lillian Lanning, 36, of 131 Plainsboro Road, Cranbury, earning a $14 fine for going through a red light.

In delayed action last week, Magistrate Chesebro fined the following Princeton area drivers: W. H. Sayen, 43, of The Great Road, $25 for speeding, and Norman D. Pott, 24, of Princeton Theological Seminary, John Pemberton, 46, of the Lincoln Highway, and Norman J. Nunziato, 22, of Union Street, Kingston, each $15 for speeding.

Clothing Donated. Over 2,000 articles, consisting of new clothing and household goods, were collected by the Princeton Branch of the Needlework Guild of America at the ingathering day and annual meeting held at the First Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Alfred C. S. Baird presided at the meeting, where reports by the secretary, Mrs. Frank H. Boyd, and the treasurer, Mrs. Andre Yokana, were given. Mrs. James Stewart of Westcott Road, talked on work done by the Florence Crittenton Home.

The nominating committee, consisting of Mrs. Charles T. Fritsch, Mrs. Matthew C. Fleming Jr., and Mrs. Norvell B. Samuels, presented the officers for the following year. They are: President, Mrs. Baird; first vice president, Mrs. Walter F. Fullam; second vice president, Mrs. Howard Waxwood; third vice president, Miss Elizabeth MacLaren; secretary, Mrs. Gavin Hildick-Smith; assistant secretary, Mrs. Edward C. Kendall; and treasurer, Mrs. Yokana. The honorary president of the Guild is Mrs. Lloyd W. Grover, and Mrs. Luther P. Eisenhart, Miss S. Madeline Hodge, and Mrs. Gordon G. Sikes are members of the advisory board. Mrs. Norvell B. Samuels is the publicity chairman.

Local beneficiaries of the Princeton Branch are: Princeton Hospital, the Social Service Bureau, Princeton Nursery School, the Visiting Nurse Association, the, Welfare Department of Borough Hall, the Methodist Church, the Mt. Pisgah Church, and the Witherspoon Church. A large donation came from Miss Chambers of the Children's Shop on Nassau Street, who gave over 80 pieces of children's clothes to the Guild. Landau's Department Store on Witherspoon Street also donated clothing.

Boxes to Aid Scholarship. Folding, 2½-inch boxes in three Christmas colors on gold foil, each with a different Scandinavian design, will be sold by eight Princeton merchants to aid the local Mount Holyoke scholarship fund. The boxes may be used to hang from the tree, as gift boxes, filled with candy for party favors, or incorporated into table centerpieces or mantel displays. A set of twelve costs $1.50, with all proceeds going to the Trenton-Princeton Alumnae Club for the fund.

Stores participating are: Allen's Child's Shop, 134 Nassau Street; Anthony's Hairdressing Salon, 162 Nassau Street; Artistic Hairdressers, 38 Witherspoon Street; Lillian Bellows, 208 Nassau Street; The Little Gallery, 39 Palmer Square West; Milholland and Olson, 8 Stockton Street; The Princeton Gourmet, 344 Nassau Street; Stuff 'N Nonsense, 10 Moore Street; and Pastimes in Washington Crossing, Pa.

PLUS AND MINUS

Fund Gets Gifts, Loses Sign. The United Community Fund campaign has reported that through last weekend sufficient reports from solicitors were not at hand to announce the overall progress of the 1956 drive. Even if the totals had been available, it would not have been possible to post them on the sign at Palmer Square. "Saturday evening, two depressed Harvard students, venting their displeasure at their football loss, pulled down the sign and tossed it on the University campus," Fund officials reported.

Not damaged, however, the sign will soon be put in position again to carry progress totals on the drive, which is around the $80,000 halfway mark at present. Chairman John P. Poe announced that "although the end of the campaign was scheduled November 5, it of course will be extended. There are many hundreds of unreported subscribers, and I urge all division chairmen, firms and offices and neighborhood solicitors to make an extra effort to complete the job by Monday.

He reported "many encouraging increases" but added that "the ratio will have to be repeated all the way down the line if we are to attain the 20% more needed this year." Opinion Research recorded one of the largest business firm increases of the campaign with 98% of the employees contributing an average gift of $14.40. Together with the $250 company gift, the Opinion Research total was $1,445 — an increase of $634 over last year.

Educational Testing Service reported a new total of $1,910 — a 35% increase over last year. Other groups showing considerable increases are American Institute of Public Opinion, Audience Research Institute and Public Opinion Surveys, and 11 real estate and insurance firms, $45 increase with a $655 total.

The Special Gifts Committee has reported 160 persons subscribing a total of $38,764. With 135 subscribers still unreported by solicitors, the average increase thus far is 14%. Mr. Poe commented, "Very substantial reports are outstanding in all 17 divisions, and until all are in, the standing on the $160,000 goal will be an unknown factor."

YOUNG WOMAN ELECTED

First Democrat in Years. A lot of "firsts"—being the youngest candidate ever to run in Rocky Hill; the first woman; and the first Democrat in "an awful long time"—did not bother 22-year-old Grace A. Gurisic. Running (for the first time) for the Rocky Hill Borough Council, she sailed through the election, winning over two Republicans and one independent candidate by some 20 votes.

Miss Gurisic received 149 votes with the other candidate elected, Richard E. Young, (R), getting 116 votes. C. William Mack (R) and Edward Vaugh (Ind.) received, respectively 79 and 39 votes. For comparison, it can be mentioned that the voters in the presidential election at Rocky Hill went for Eisenhower with 170, while Stevenson only got 81.

A native of Rocky Hill, Miss Gurisic lives at Washington Street with her mother, Mrs. Margaret Gurisic, and her brother George, who is chief of police. During her campaign, she called on everybody in town twice and found that she already knew all but two people, having met them on polio and heart fund drives or taught their children in Sunday School.

A graduate of Princeton High School in 1952, Miss Gurisic started at Rider College this year, majoring in secretarial science. She is admissions officer at Princeton Hospital on weekends and was formerly employed by Educational Testing Service. She sings in the Reformed Church's choir and teaches Sunday School there. Her political activities include serving as committee woman in Rocky Hill; secretary of Somerset County Young Democrats, and vice-president in New Jersey State Young Democrats. Her main objective in running was, she says, "to represent the ordinary people," and her visits with the voters during the campaign fully confirmed this wish.

Birth List. Sons have been born at Princeton Hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Stange, 19 Hamilton Avenue; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gulick, 218-C Eisenhower Street; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Furch, Jr., 111 West Prospect Street, Hopewell, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Cornell, 3d, Plainsboro; Mr. and Mrs. William P. Virgin, 40 Patton Avenue; Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Mapes, Jr., 56 Lafayette Road, Hopewell; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Vega, Canal Road, Rocky Hill; Mr. and Mrs. James F. Martin, 34 Hibben Road.

Parents of daughters include Mr. and Mrs. David Powell, 45 Columbia Avenue, Hopewell; Mr. and Mrs. John Tassie, Carter Road; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Weidl, 87 Model Avenue, Hopewell; Mr. and Mrs. William Niven, Amwell Road, Hopewell; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sipler, River Road, Belle Mead.

COUNCILWOMAN GURISIC

Food for Thanksgiving Baskets. The Princeton Circle of the Florence Crittenton Mission, following a long-standing custom, will provide opportunity starting Friday for members of the community to contribute food for Thanksgiving baskets for homes in the Princeton area. Containers for the Thanksgiving donations, which will be received through Wednesday, will be placed at the following markets and food stores: Acme, A&P, Davidson's, Royal Scarlet, Schafer's Market, as well as Marsh and Company, Thorne's Drug Store and South's Garage Showroom.

Donations should be canned goods and other non-perishable goods. Cooperating schools are the Nassau Street School, Miss Fine's School, the Littlebrook School, Princeton High School, St. Paul's, Valley Road School and the Witherspoon School. Officers of the Circle are Mrs. Charles W. Link, president; Mrs. John M. Larson, vice-chairman; Mrs. George A. Graham, acting treasurer.

Christmas Seals Ready. The Christmas Seal sale has been launched with a mailing asking for contributions for the fight against tuberculosis. Although medical advances greatly have reduced the threat of the illness, six new cases have appeared in Princeton since last January.

The letters were mailed by 40 women volunteers for the Princeton Tuberculosis League with Mrs. Shove Palmer, campaign chairman. In addition to mail solicitation, Hinkson's store at 74 Nassau Street will have seals available throughout the campaign. During the week of December 10-17, seals will also be obtainable at the Shopping Center in the Acme Market, at the University Store, and at the First National Bank.

What Is Christmas?

This year, it's styrofoam, treated with a flair and flourish that you've never seen before.

. . . a fat black steam engine puffing clouds of tinsel, red ribbon and sequins with a snowman at the throttle — a red carousel, whirling giddily to "Jingle Bells" — a Stanley Steamer, manned by elves in red and white, its tonneau frosty with the snows and glitter of long-ago Christmases — a three-foot toy soldier with a spangle of medals on his pouter-pigeon chest. For traditionalists, Christmas will still be a festoon of gold across the mantlepiece (we have the thick tinsel garlands so hard to find) . . . or a string of pin-point lights, no bigger than fireflies, to shine on the littlest Christmas tree.

TAKE IT FROM ME, BUDDY: That seems to be the attitude of Bernie Olbrys (left) as he tells fellow MacDaid's salesman Joe Cox how he feels about this weekend's Princeton-Yale football game. Joe proves a good listener, but doesn't follow Bernie's lead in predicting the game's outcome, as can be seen in Question of the Week below.

Question of the Week

Question: Who will win this week's Princeton - Yale football game and by what score?
Location: Around town.

Bernie Olbrys, Trenton, salesman for MacDaid's: It's not easy for me to give you any solid reasons for my choice—since I go strictly by intuition in such matters—so I won't even try to explain it. Let's just say I have a hunch, like last year. I'll pick Princeton by a score of 21 to 6.

Joe Cox, 20 Fairview Avenue, salesman for MacDaid's: Princeton has a better coached team than Yale, and also more depth. The second Princeton club is practically as good as the first, at least along the line. As a results, I'll predict a 24-13 victory for the Tigers.

Jim Mather, 29 Linden Lane, co-captain of Princeton High Schoo's 1956 football team: Princeton is going to beat 'em. Charlie Caldwell has two good lines working for him, and that should do the trick. Yale will be ahead at halftime, I think, but Princeton will wear 'em down in the second half and finally take 'em, 27-21.

Matt Hafenmaier, Maple Avenue, Plainsboro, co-captain of Princeton High School's 1956 football team: Old Nassau's got a better balanced club than Yale and should be able to win by about one touchdown. The Princeton offense will be primarily responsible for its success, but it'll take good play by the defensive boys as well as the offensive units to bring home the bacon. My prediction: Princeton 27, Yale 20.

John Lasley, Cherry Valley Road, research analyst with Opinion Research Corporation (and a Yale alumnus): I'd say Yale will win, but probably by no more than 35-13. I just think Yale has a better team. It'll be the game that determines the Ivy League title, and there are a lot of us who believe it's Yale's turn this year!

Mary Hennon, 120 Prospect Street, secretary in Princeton University's Reunion Office: I think Princeton will get three touchdowns, or just enough to win. My guess is that the final score will be 21 to 13, with the Tigers getting all three of their extra points and Yale missing one of two. Princeton's the best team in the east—I really believe it!

Dr. D. M. Majarian, 964 Princeton-Kingston Road, dentist: I feel that Princeton will win, simply because Princeton's got the better team. Princeton's got better reserve strength than Yale, and that's going to make the big difference. I'd say it will be a close, 13-7 ball game.

Robert McHugh, 134 Alexander Street, automobile salesman: I think Princeton will win it because of its superior line and because it has come up with more talent in the backfield than anticipated when the season began. Yale actually has a better backfield, but Princeton has a better all-around team and, above all, a better coach. I'll be looking for a 20-7 verdict for the Tigers.

An "Intuitive" Favorite

A year ago this week, in inaugurating an annual pre-Princeton-Yale feature, Town Topics devoted Question of the Week to prognostication concerning the game's outcome. Five partisan interviewees picked the Tigers' upset victory over the Elis, but only one—Bernie Olbrys—guessed correctly that it would be a shutout win.

In commenting on his 14-0 prediction in 1955 (the final score was 13-0), soothsayer Olbrys credited a great deal of his success to "intuition." He also noted that he might well have picked the exact result had Coach Charlie Caldwell not crossed him up by allowing Joe DiRenzo, an end with an untalented toe, to take a crack at Princeton's second conversion attempt.

As a result of his success a year back, Mr. Olbrys was asked to answer Question's second Princeton - Yale query this week. His crystal-gazing pronouncement can be found elsewhere on this page, and it is the inquiring reporter's fervent hope that the seer's "intuition" can come through for him in '56.

News Of The Theatres

SHAW DOES IT AGAIN

Good Work by Theatre Intime. Just as it took Shaw to throw rays of light in the deep gloom of the current Broadway season with "The Apple Cart" and "Major Barbara" (to say nothing of "My Fair Lady"), the Princeton season received a welcome shot-in-the-arm with Theatre Intime's spirited production of "Androcles and the Lion."

In spite of a small audience opening night, the players gave a fast-paced, wonderfully alive performance, and the play, in spite of minor flaws to be expected in a production of this kind, was well-worth seeing. (It will continue through Saturday at Murray Theatre, beginning at 8:30 each evening.)

The play, a philosophical examination of Christianity underneath the many sparkling lines, Shavian irony and downright farcial humor, is one of the most amusing of Shaw's religious writings. It most nearly resembles one of the early English "miracle plays" which dramatically retold the Bible stories but introduced comic English characters.

"Androcles" was well-cast, with the actors doing a uniformly good job. The tendency to sound like a string of epigrams or quotations, a tendency that Shaw's often-performed plays share with those of Oscar Wilde, was handled well, with the performance emerging as a united whole.

It should be mentioned that the Christians in the first act were not so much cheerful and gay as rather hysterical gigglers, that the problem of getting the large cast smoothly on and off the small stage at times seemed to overwhelm the director, and that the timing once in a while was off-beat, but these remain minor faults, justly overshadowed by the overall production.

The actors were, as already noted, effective and too numerous to mention in detail. Michael Glenn made a fine tenderhearted and touching Androcles, and Shirley Menaker's excellent performance as Lavinia was only marred by her stiffly cramped gestures.

As the captain Arthur Miller (no relation to the present Mrs. M. the program sadly reveals) was entirely believable, and Paul Fredrix gave the character of Spintho depth and compassion. The performances of Marylou Kelly as Megaera, Jules Ubbelohde as the centurion, Russell Stratton as Lentulus, and C. Clive Cowper as Caesar added much to the show, and John MacFarlane should receive a special award for his very fierce, ferocious and funny lion.

The direction by Peter Nichols was, in general, authoritative and very successful, while the settings by Nicholls and Gary Carr managed, with few means, to create a perfect illusion. Bill Clark was in charge of the lighting.

THE PLAYHOUSE

Tea and Sympathy (Nov. 15-17) comes to the screen, in CinemaScope and effective color, from a successful Broadway run, with stars Deborah Kerr and John Kerr (no kin) retained for the Hollywood version. It's not an easy story to tell and manage to get it by censors—dealing as it does with an accused homo-sexual who is saved from shame by a loving schoolmaster's wife — but MGM's Vincente Minenelli provides deft directorial skill. The conclusion of this 122-minute adult film is anti-climatic, though the rest of the poignant tale may make it bearable.

The Opposite Sex (Nov. 18-20) sounds better than it is. Actually, it is based on Clare Booth's play about life among "The Women," which made pretty fair movie fare back in 1939, but this time MGM has seen fit to clutter the set with an overdose of big Hollywood names who don't get a chance to exert their true talents. Ann Miller, for example, doesn't get to dance a step. And Dolores Gray doesn't sing a note other than the title song, though there are many songs and dances in the film (something the earlier version succeeded without.) June Allyson plays a sweet, innocent wife for the umpteenth outing and all the other gals are vicious cats in the female jungle. Needless to report, some occasionolly funny dialogue isn't enough to carry this one.

Oklahoma! (Starting Nov. 21.) Ever since March, 1943, when it first hit the New York stage like a prairie cyclone, Americans have been enjoying this great Rodgers & Hammerstein musical. Now it is on film in magnificent technicolor and in CinemaScope—a perfect vehicle for both processes. A few of the cast choices, notably Eddie Albert as the peddler and Gloria Grahame as Ado Annie, fall short in their performances, but the singing of bright newcomer Shirley Jones and Gordon MacRae, plus Rod Stelger's interpretation of the unhappy Jud Fry, make up for the other shortcomings. Despite the usual Hollywood tampering, "Oklahoma!" is a "must" for those who have never caught the show and a fresh effort for those who want to see it again.

THE GARDEN

Bullfight (Nov. 15-17) is a black-and-white documentary with narration, imported by Janus Films, that appears to have limited appeal. It deals factually, interestingly and artistically with the much-publicized struggle between matador and bull, devoting considerable footage to the long training of both participants but saving an adequate amount for some brutal combat scenes. The traditions of bullfighting and the transition that has occurred in the sport over the past seven centuries also are treated.

The White Shiek (Nov. 19-21), in Italian with English subtitles, is the first U. S. release of a film directed by Federico Fellini, a man with an international reputation for quality. His debut picture fails to hit the mark now and then, but it boasts enough amusing and touching moments to give a substantial indication of its director's ability. The plot, a rather funny satire on romance, also takes care of relatives and a subject remote to Americans, the photographed comic strip.

School Transportation Steps. The Princeton Township Board of Education has taken several steps toward a solution of the complex problem of safe travel for children to and from school. Stressing that it is "neither a permanent or complete solution," the board approved an emergency plan for transporting children of kindergarten through third grade, especially those who encounter hazardous areas.

Transportation for older children will be provided in exceptional cases to be decide by a special committee. It is composed of Mrs. Bertha Eisenmann, superintendent of schools; and William Furcell, elementary school coordinator.

The additional transportation will provide for picking up children on already established routes within the two-mile limit, with the cost of the service involving a loss of state aid for each route on a pro-rated mileage basis. On two routes, a small number of children in the upper grades will be carried to eliminate guards at two crossing points; thereby bringing a monetary saving or the release of two men for service elsewhere.

In addition, the board authorized advertisement for bids for two new bus routes, to be paid for solely by the Township. The buses will carry children in kindergarten through the third grade in areas which involve hazardous walking to the Littlebrook School —such as along the Princeton-Kingston Road, the Shadybrook development, Prospect Extension, Riverside development, Cedar Lane and Harrison Street.

The advertisement of bids was authorized after doubt of the legality of the transportation measure had been dissipated and action is expected as soon as the legal time limit for receiving bids has elapsed. Parents whose children will be involved will receive notification.

Also at the meeting, held last Thursday, steps to insure sites for long-range buildings were taken, including authorization for the president of the board to request a tract in the Gulick estate be set aside for school purposes. With regard to land on which the board recently took an option, an alternate option for a larger tract at a somewhat higher price was authorized, as well as for two impartial appraisals of the land and an outside engineering evaluation of the usability of the land for school purposes.

In other business, George Conover, chairman of buildings and grounds, announced a gift of $500 from Philip Golden, plumbing contractor for the new building, toward equipment for the Littlebrook School playground. Mr. Golden thereby fulfilled his statement some time ago that he would seek to present a gift from his contract as acknowledgement of the consideration shown him by the board. The board also noted with deep regret the loss of William Karch, "loyal and hardworking member of the board for many years" who died last week after a long illness.

College Club Will Meet. C. Norris Houghton, co-managing director of the Phoenix Theatre, New York, will speak on " Advance from Broadway," Monday at the 3:30 p.m. meeting of the Women's College Club of Princeton to be held in the social room of the high school. Mr. Houghton, a graduate of Princeton where he was vice-president of Triangle Club and president of Theatre Intime, has done extensive lecturing at Princeton and Columbia.

A member of the board of directors of the American National Theatre and Academy and a former associate editor of "Theatre Arts," he has directed such productions as "MacBeth," "Clutterbuck," and "Billy Budd." Mrs. Welter F. Fullam, hostess in charge for the meeting, will be assisted by Mrs. V. K. Zworykin, Miss Alice Smith, Mrs. Andre Yokana, Mrs. James M. Black, Mrs. Frederick F. Stephan and Mrs. James Hillier.

Faculty Husbands' Night. Princeton Professors Alan S. Downer of the English Department and James R. Arnold of the Chemistry Department will give commentaries on two films as the highlight of the annual Husbands' Night planned Monday evening by the Junior Faculty Wives. The affair, which will be held at the First Presbyterian Church, will begin at 7:30 with a covered dish supper.

Beginning at 9 p.m., Professor Downer will give commentary on "The American Hero" and Professor Arnold will comment with the showing of "Atomic Energy: Weapon for Peace." The speakers will answer questions after each film.

Admission to the showing of the films, open to guests, will be 25 cents. Supper reservations may be made through any of the following members of the supper committee: Mrs. Roderic H. Pierce, Mrs. Richard W. Laity, Mrs. John A. Weil and Mrs. Martin Sichel.

Initial High School PTA Meeting. Parents will go "Back to School" with teachers of their children Tuesday evening at the opening of the Princeton High School Parent-Teacher Association at 8 p.m. They will follow their children's schedule, attending 10-minute classes in which the teachers will explain their plans for the year.

Appointments with the teachers for additional conferences may be arranged through the school's guidance department. It was also announced that the Christmas program of the student body will be held December 19 at 8 p.m. in the University Chapel. PTA

CUT-BACK BRINGS TOUCHDOWN: Two minutes before the first half ended in Palmer Stadium Saturday, tailback Jim Mottley ran through right tackle and then cut diagonally to the left and the Harvard goal line, outracing center Mike Prichard (50) and end Stu Hershon (85). The 165-lb. triple threat also passed twice for touchdowns and accounted for 253 yards in pacing Princeton's 35-20 triumph.

YALE IS HUNGRY

One Victory in 10 Years. Ten years ago this month, a patched-up Princeton team that never could re-organize after upsetting powerful Pennsylvania, 17-14, was thoroughly whipped by a strong Yale outfit, 30 to 2. Consider how long ago that was, through realization that Harry Truman still had six more years as President; that no one placed any military importance on a small wasteland known as Korea; and that Firestone Library and Dillon Gymnasium were still a-building.

Not since tha far-off November afternoon (when Dick Kazmaier was two years away from college and Jack Sapoch was a husky lad of 9) has Yale scored a victory over Princeton in the Yale Bowl. It's a long time to go hungry.

Never in the 83-year history of Big Three football rivalries has one team so completely dominated another. The Elis won here in 1953 in the last 24 seconds, but other than that, Princeton has taken all the marbles in the post-war decade. The Tigers were off to the races with a stunning 17-0 upset in 1947, gradually increased their margin to one-sided triumphs in 1950 and 1951, and then after losing in the final minute three years ago, went back to the process of upsetting favored Yale entries in '54 and '55

This fall, accordingly, the Class of 1957 at New Haven—one of the best group of football players ever to represent an Ivy college—will line up for the last time against Princeton, still wondering what it's like to beat the Orange and Black. The resultant degree of determination will be extreme.

Over 60,000 Expected. Because the first formal Ivy title will be at stake Saturday; because Princeton is one of just four major teams in the nation still unbeaten; and because both teams can field a number of particularly able players, good weather is expected to bring upwards of 60,000 to the spacious Bowl. There is every reason to believe they will see a whale of a ball game, one in which each team's polished attack will frequently overmatch the defense to produce a high-scoring battle. Stay-at-homes can see the game on channel 4.

For the first time in three years, Yale is at top strength for the contest and has played Pennsylvania in a one-sided (40-7) affair rather than rugged Army the week befor it takes on Princeton. The Blue has sputtered fitfully in trimming Connecticut and five Ivy opponents while losing to Colgate, but has always given a clear picture that great latent power is available. Scout Bill Whitton told the Tiger coaching staff Sunday that "Yale's easy victory over Penn was far and away its best team performance of the season."

The Elis' line includes Paul Lopata and Vern Loucks, ends; Bide Thomas and Charlie Griffith, tackles; Captain Mike Owselchik and Pete Fritzsche, guards; and Alex Kroll, center. Not one of them weighs under 200 pounds; all are seniors save Kroll and Griffith, sophomores good enough to oust lettermen from their jobs.

Yale's starting backfield is composed entirely of seniors. Dean Loucks is the quarterback, Dennis McGill and Al Ward are fast halfbacks and Steve Ackerman (out for the past two seasons with a broken collarbone) is a good 209-

Freshman Aim for Sixth

Yale's freshmen, victors in two of their four games to date, are the final barrier that the Princeton Class of 1960 must pass to achieve an unbeaten season. The contest will be played at New Haven Saturday morning at 11 on a field adjacent to the Yale Bowl.

The Eli freshmen have beaten Brown and Columbia, losing to Dartmouth and Cornell. Princeton's fifth in a row was achieved last Saturday over Harvard by a 20-0 count, the Crimson becoming the freshmen's first whitewash victim.

Mike Ippolito, a standou fullback, scored twice for Coach Matt Davidson's team with reserve tailback Dick George producing the other. Captain Dan Sachs, the team's best passer, saw only brief action and there was a possibility that a bruised back might again limit his appearance on Saturday.

WE Congratulate

JACK SAPOCH

Princeton Quarterback

No one player is ever solely responsible for the fact that his team is performing far above expectations, but one of the big reasons for Princeton's totally unexpected 7-and-0 status in mid-November is the play of its fine quarterback, Jack Sapoch. While others have run and passed for virtually all of the 2,589 yards and 32 touchdowns Princeton has achieved this season, making the Tigers one of the top eight teams in the nation on offense, it is Sapoch's blocking and signal-calling that have largely paved the way.

The 200-lb. junior from Allentown, Pa., a high school tackle before he was converted to quarterback as a freshman, is a paradox as a back in that his first love is tackling. When not on defense, he'd rather block. On occasion, however, he calls his own signal with marked success; as a pass receiver in last week's Harvard game, he ran the final 12 yards into the end zone, bouncing off two tacklers and simply running over a third.

As a sophomore, the durable Sapoch played more football than any other member of the squad. As a junior, in Charlie Caldwell's words, he has had one "average game" this season. That was against Colgate, when a broken nose suffered in the Penn game had kept him out of practice all week and his timing was off.

Any other superlatives the Princeton sports fan wants to apply to his play will probably be accepted by the Tiger coach, who will break long-standing policy by referring to his quarterback as "a great player" even before he has completed his junior year. Some coaches dream of the power they'd have if all the top players they had ever coached were available in the same season. Without intending a lack of respect for his former stars, Caldwell has been heard to mutter dreamily on more than one occasion, "Just give me 11 Sapochs and you can have the rest."

lb. fullback. Topflight reserve backs include Dean Winterbauer, a quarterback about as good as Loucks; Don Griffith and Stu Horwitz, halfbacks; and Tom Lorch, fullback.

The Elis have good depth everywhere save at tackle, and have the advantage over Princeton in both weight and speed, in addition to playing at home. They will no doubt settle for a one-point victory, but if they have the chance to break the game wide open, memory of the unprecedented string of defeats at Princeton's hands will urge them on to the final whistle.

Tigers Thin in Spots. When fullback Hewes Agnew, himself a reserve at the start of the season but the regular after Fred Tiley was lost for the year with a broken collarbone, left the Harvard game last week with a recurrence of an old knee injury, Princeton used a converted center, a converted tailback and a reserve wingback at the position. One of them in particular (junior Alan Manzler) showed to advantage, but the situation underscores the fact that the Tiger is currently somewhat held together with bailing wire.

Agnew is expected back for Saturday's contest, as is Tom Morris, who was merely jarred in a collision with Mike Stewart and a Harvard ball carrier. John Heyd, missing since the Penn game, will return to lend depth at tailback, and Paul Nystrom may be ready for contact again, giving Charlie Caldwell three centers.

No lineup changes are anticipated, unless tailback Jim Mottley's great passing average (73%) gives him a starting berth in the event that Princeton receives. Morris has much running ability and is the best defensive safety man in the league, but Mottley's performances against Brown and Harvard have earned him Caldwell's praise as "a fine athlete."

Without Royce Flippin, who got up off the bench in the past two seasons to score four touchdowns and trim Yale each time, the Tigers will depend on a well-balanced attack that has averaged 31 points against their first seven opponents and has never failed to produce at least three touchdowns. It is on this phase of their game that the outcome will depend, since there is no reason to believe that Yale has not the overall ability to score at least two and possibly as many as four touchdowns against the Orange and Black.

It is possible but highly improbable that Yale will contribute to its own defeat as much as it has the past two years. The Blue fumbled the incredible total of 15 times, losing one touchdown after another through inability to complete handoffs and retain possession when tackled.

Because Princeton has won the last two years, and will step on the Bowl turf Saturday unbeaten, it will have the psychological edge. An early touchdown or two could put more pressure on the Elis than they could withstand.

It is extremely difficult to believe, however, that a team boasting the ability and depth that Yale has had for the past three years cannot win once during that time. If the Elis miss this time, a penetrating analysis of what's wrong with Yale football will be launched at New Haven, for with Princeton's holdover strength in 1957 and a considerably better than average freshman team on tap, the future for the Blue looks blue indeed.

Harvard Beaten Easily. Despite the fact that Harvard launched 78 offensive plays to just 50 for Princeton, last Saturday's 35-20 triumph for the Tigers was markedly one-sided. They rolled to 28 points while holding the losers to 79 yards and no points, then used reserve players to give them experience while resting the varsity.

Harvard took advantage of the situation by battling back for three touchdowns, but never had the weapon that won for Princeton: ability to cover long distances in a short time. Hobbled to some degree on the ground by Agnew's absence, the Tigers picked up 258 yards in the air—only 121 yards less than they achieved in this department during the entire 199 season.

A fine 34-yard punt return by Bill Danforth left Princeton with only six yards to go for its first touchdown, but thereafter the Orange and Black went 80 in just five plays; 27 in four; 23 in two; and 59 in three. In fact, they had the ball for only five plays throughout the third period, scoring 14 points, while Harvard ran 26 plays and produced only six points.

Jim Mottley hit on nine of ten passes for 226 yards, two of them for touchdowns, and added a third himself on a pretty piece of broken-field work that took him over from 20 yards out. Jack Sapoch hit the scoring column for the first time, taking a pass from Mottley for the Tigers' second TD, and turned in another outstanding performance (see "We Congratulate," page 20.")

A cold but sun-filled afternoon produced dry ground for the first Harvard-Princeton game since 1952, the Tigers scoring 14 more points than they had been able to total in their last three outings against the Crimson. It was the first Princeton triumph in the series in three years, leaving the standing at 28 for the Tigers, 16 for Harvard and five ties.

PHS LOOKS AHEAD

Tired of History Lessons. In addition to his football coaching chores at Princeton High School, Joe Jingoli has a full schedule of English classes to teach. This week, after completing another season of football, he pondered the idea of giving up English in favor of history, for he has learned enough about history repeating itself to feel qualified to teach that subject.

Consider what the coach has on his mind: The 1955 Little Tigers lost their first two games to Leonardo and Peddie, won three of their next four in meritorious fashion, then dropped another pair to Long Branch and Ewing to finish with a none-too-lustrous 3-5 record. The 1956 Little Tigers, with 11 letter-wearing holdovers and an abundance of high hopes, duplicated the '55 campaign, emerging with the very same record while dashing their hopes enroute.

History-learner Jingoli said he again has high hopes for next year, despite the fact that he had to "jinx" himself this week by awarding varsity letters to 11 players who will return in '57, an ominous "repeat" figure. He pointed out that he can see a welcome break in the history lesson already: Peddie School, out of PHS' class due to age, weight and experience differences, will be replaced on the Blue and White's '57 slate.

There were other thoughts to console him as well. For example, he will be permitted to start fall practice sessions earlier than this year and also will have an extra week in September for preparations. He will undoubtedly find one or more of three opponents—Trenton, Ewing and Long Branch—weaker than this season, when each hit a rejuvenated peak. And, finally, he will greet candidates from Coach Tony Borzok's promising freshman team that tasted defeat but once this fall (in eight games) and walloped Ewing's frosh, 40-19.

Heavy Line, Small Backs. Personnel-wise, Jingoli and his conscientious aides will greet a representative group in the returning lettermen, perhaps somewhat stronger than the '56 returnees because of better balance along the line. In this department, for example, he will have to Co-Captain-elect Bill Gallant (175) and Roddy Pannell (150) at ends, Joe (The Toe) Nutt (230), Bob Grover (200), Bruce Larson (215) and Bob Sculerati (212) for duty at the tackle or guard slots and Lou Reiger (200) set for center.

The returning backs will be small and inexperienced but fast and capable of rapid development between now and then. Co-Captain-elect Vic Fasanella (135), a fine defensive linebacker, will be the smallest fullback in PHS annals. With him will be Edgar Riddick (162), a highly promising runner-punter and sole sophomore to earn a letter, at tailback. Alan Ammerman (160) at wingback and Joe Chibbaro (160) at quarterback. Another sophomore tailback, Julius (Butch) Cross (145), who demonstrated signs of passing finesse during the final games of the campaign, will be given ample opportunity to throw for the Little Tigers on a regular basis.

Senior letter-winners on the '56 varsity were Co-Captains Jim Mather and Matt Hafenmaier, Carmen Cirullo, Bill Dilatush, Bob Faherty, Jim Henderson, Dick Knowles, Nick Kovalakides, Mike Logue, Bill Miller, Ivan Riddick, Fred Skillman and Lewis Thomas. The 11th junior to take a letter was Tex Wilkenson.

Princeton's need for overall improvement, with a special emphasis on blocking and kicking, was never more apparent than last Thursday, when Ewing smothered PHS in the mud of Harris Field, 39-6. Showing evidence of a tremendous let-down following their all-out effort against powerful Long Branch only five days earlier, the Little Tigers never got started and did everything wrong while the Blue Devils, enjoying the stimulus of a four-game winning streak, got off to a potent start and did everything right.

Ewing, having won in 1955 in the last minute of play, toyed with PHS this year and showed once again that some of history's lessons can be tough to absorb. Now, surely, it must be historian Jingoli's turn to prove he has learned enough to teach the lessons himself.

BOWLING NOTES

Opinion Research Corporation held its tenuous two-game lead in the red-hot "B" League race this past week, but Maul Electric and the National Guard gained considerable ground to move into a quick four-way tie for second place with Boice Lumber and the Plainsboro Lions (each team has 30 wins) . . . Individual pacesetters in the Princeton Recreation Center's tightest competition were Joe Belding, 214-204, Bill Murphy, 214, "Doc" Areamone, 210, Fred Lehnert, 203, and Ed Hoffman, also 203. . . . For the third consecutive week, at least five Major loop keglers posted scores of 200-plus, though their strong contributions failed to alter the league standings. . . . Hal Frazee, helping Frazee's Market retain its top berth, rolled 215, followed by Pros Aeschbacker, 211, Cy Cornell, 209, Jim Fuelhart, 203-201, and Nick Sculerati, 200. Tiger Garage remained in the runner-up spot, three victories back of Frazee's, while Decker's Dairy stayed in third with 29 wins, an even 10 off the pace.

In Princeton Industrial League play, Glenmoor held the top rung with 58 triumphs, but the next five clubs got mixed up in a bit of position-shuffling. . . . Nassau Service climbed from fourth to second with 46 wins, pushing the Reformers from second to third and the Pioneers from third to fourth while Wengryn Construction jumped into fifth and Gable Tavern fell to sixth. . . . High bowlers for the week were Bill Bathie and Larry Golden, hitting for 222 apiece, Ralph Kleiber, 218, and Walt Wengryn, 201. . . . Interest mounted this week in the Tri-County Firemen's League as the two leading clubs, Princeton No. 1 with 45 wins and Belle Mead with 42, prepared to meet each other tonight in a match that could well shake up the current alignment. . . . Watching anxiously while playing their matches will be third-place Kingston, with 36 victories, and fourth-place Rocky Hill, with 34 . . . . Last week, Frank Stofko led the individual rollers with a 228 game, followed by Otto Olsen, 221, Bob Michinski, 205, Bip Davison, also 205 and George Hibbs, 203.

THE LONG AND THE SHORT OF IT: Juniors Bill Gallant (right), 6-foot 3-inch end, and Vic Fasanella, 5-foot 9-inch fullback, pose for their first photograph together following an election Monday that resulted in their being chosen co-captains of Princeton High's 1957 football team. After the election, the two defensive stars demonstrated their talents in an annual post-season game against Ewing High's juniors and sophomores, but couldn't spark a sustained offensive push and lost, 6-0. At picture time, they vowed revenge next year. For a look at PHS' revenge plans, see Sports in Princeton.

Lillian Burrough stole the show in the Princeton Women's League with her 200-155-145 high individual set of 500, despite the fact that the Betty Wright Shop vaulted from seventh to third in the standing by bowling high team game of 722 and high team set of 2,132. . . . Castoro GMC kept far ahead in the loop race with 56 wins, chased by Cranbury Bank, which went nowhere (still at 50 wins), and the vaulting third-rankers, with 41 triumphs. . . . Behind Miss Burrough individually were Betty Harris, 193, Helen Lowe, 171-155, Ruth Skillman, 170, and Ruth Bonin, 165. . . . Meanwhile in the Women's Industrial League, Conover Motors (52 wins) replaced First National Bank (50) in first place and the West Windsor Lions (46) took over third place from beleaguered Nassau Service (44) . . . Gil DeVido, tossing a powerful 199-202, set a too-torrid pace for the gals, as indicated by the fact that no one came closer than Betty Snyder, 171, Madeline Donaldson, 162-165, and Joan Dunn, 166.

News of the Churches

"Come, Ye Thankful People". Princeton's annual Community Thanksgiving Service, in which all local Protestant churches participate, will be held again this year at 11 a.m. in the Chapel of Princeton University. Dr. Kenneth L. Maxwell, associate executive director of the Department of International Affairs of the National Council of Churches of Christ will deliver the Thanksgiving sermon.

A procession of pastors from the ten participating congregations will open the service, and the choirs from these churches will lead the praise and sing the anthem. Dr. Carl Weinrich, Chapel organist, and Mrs. Mary Krimmel, organist of the First Presbyterian Church, will provide the accompaniement.

Bulletin Notes. Over 950 pounds of useful warm clothing and blankets were received at the World Community Day service held on Friday, November 2 by the Princeton Council of Church Women. Clothing was packed under the direction of Mrs. John Lorson and was delivered by truck to the Church World Service Center, New York, through the kindness of Warren Froelich of Bohren's Express and Storage.

Donn Moomaw, Seminary student and former All-American from U.C.L.A., spoke to members of the Princeton High School football team at last Sunday's Methodist Men's Breakfast . . . Red Barber will speak to the First Church Westminster Foundation this Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

"Every-Member Canvass" drives will be held by several local churches. Trinity's day is November 25, Penns Neck Baptist will send out canvassers this Sunday and so will First Presbyterian. The First church drive will be held from 3-5 p.m., and the church adds to the announcement its hope that "all members will stay home during this time."

Unitarian Top Goal

Jubilant Unitarians announced at their Victory Dinner last week that they have a total of $101,586 for their new church building. The initial goal, set at the start of the campaign three weeks ago, was $100,000.

Peter Putnam, president of the congregation, also announced that the entire cost of the fund raising amounted to less than half of one percent of the total, or about $600. He said that this figure and the total amount raised since October 18, when the drive began, were record figures for Unitarian church drives.

Dr. Putnam, in making his announcements, extended the thanks of the Unitarians to the Princeton Community Players and to the Princeton YM-YWCA, the two groups that have provided housing for the church. He also expressed his hope that the new Unitarian church "Will be an asset to Princeton and will be of service to the community".

Working drawings for the new structure will be commissioned soon, and the congregation hopes that ground will be broken in March, 1957.

AN

...If you are a young man, possibly in your early thirties,

...if you have had 5 to 8 years experience in investments—have a general knowledge of stocks, municipal bonds and brokerage practices,

...if you like to think of the investment business as a profession, but at the same time enjoy customer contacts and developing new accounts,

...if you would like to work in the Princeton, Trenton, Bucks County area and end daily commuting to New York and Philadelphia,

...there may be an excellent opportunity for you with a small, highly successful, growing investment firm. Reply in writing to: P.O. Box 787, Trenton, New Jersey.

Scholz Homes, Inc.
ARE AN ANSWER TO AN EVER-PRESENT PRINCETON PROBLEM

A Quality Home at a Reasonable Price

These modern California contemporary style homes, through careful engineering design, have achieved the maximum in savings and, on the other hand, incorporate the most luxurious features of modern architectural thought — Vaulted ceilings, diffuse lighting, walst-high ovens, mahogany cabinets, Thermopane glass throughout are only some of the many available modifications.

Weatherly, Inc. can build you this house on a 4" concrete slab for $15,080.00

FREEZERS! FREEZERS!
FREEZERS!

We just received another large shipment of the latest model upright freezers—one of the finest makes in the country.

We do not employ high-priced silver-tongued salesmen, but we do sell these freezers for absolutely half of the list price. If you need a freezer now or if you intend to buy one later, just come in and look them over and compare Quality and Price.

These freezers are ABSOLUTELY the best buy of the year. We specialize in the finest quality Black Angus Beef that money can buy. We also have grain-fed Hereford steers and heifers that we can sell by the side from 35c up.

These cattle are fed and slaughtered in our own state-approved plant. We cut, wrap and quick-freeze as you wish.
